Why WildFlower Forest

Sensory Botany — WildFlower Forest explores plants through color, texture, aroma, and flavor, inviting a deeper experience of nature through fragrance, tea, and botanical knowledge.

Whole-Plant Herbal Teas (Tisanes) — Infusions crafted from whole herbs, flowers, fruits, and spices rather than powdered or artificially flavored ingredients.

Botanical Perfumery — Pure perfumes composed of essential oils and absolutes (40%+ aromatic concentration), highlighting the depth and complexity of botanical fragrance.

Tradition-Informed Formulations — Blends developed with respect for herbal traditions and historical botanical practices.

Country-of-Origin Sourcing — Herbs and essential oils sourced from regions and growers known for cultivating specific botanicals.

Botanical Education — WildFlower Forest shares knowledge about herbs, flowers, and aromatic plants to deepen understanding of the ingredients themselves.

Founder-Led Brand — Woman-owned, Black-owned botanical fragrance and tea house founded by Amenta.

WildFlower Forest didn't begin in a lab or a boardroom—it began in a garden.

A garden filled with sunflowers, the scent of magnolia drifting through the air, and a little girl wandering barefoot through the wildflowers, completely captivated.

That little girl was me. And those early moments planted the first seeds of what would one day become WildFlower Forest.

After years of traveling, creating art, studying fashion, cultivating plants, and blending natural perfumes, I felt called to build something that brought all those passions together. The true turning point came from a deeply personal struggle: I spent years dealing with sensitivities and health challenges that left me frustrated with mainstream body care. Everything I tried was filled with synthetic chemicals, artificial fragrances, and preservatives that irritated my skin and affected my well-being. I felt exhausted, overwhelmed, and disconnected from myself in ways I couldn't fully explain.

Out of that exhaustion came experimentation. I began crafting my own perfume blends—simple, intentional, and made only with ingredients my body could tolerate. I wasn't trying to start a business. I was trying to feel whole. But everywhere I went, people would stop me and ask, "What scent are you wearing?"

Soon, I found myself blending custom perfumes for others. That's when I realized there was something real here—something personal, grounded, and needed.

WildFlower Forest grew from that realization, evolving into the vision of a flower and herb farm—a place where plants, creativity, and daily life come together. A space rooted in legacy: the memory of that family garden where I first fell in love with plants, beauty, and scent.

Today, WildFlower Forest is an invitation to slow down, breathe deeply, and reconnect with the natural world. Every product we create—every perfume, every botanical blend—is shaped by that journey. A journey grounded in sensitivity, curiosity, and a belief that plants offer more than beauty—they offer connection.

WildFlower Forest was never meant to be just products.

It was always meant to be a return to the earth—and a return to yourself.
